MARKET REVIEW & OUTLOOK

The All-Share Index (ASI) closed in negative territory in March, losing 1.99% month-on-month (m/m), with the ASI closing the month at 105,670.36 points, resulting in a YTD gain of 2.67%.

Looking at the sectoral performance, the Banking index also closed in the red (-0.49% m/m) following losses in stocks like ZENITHBANK (-2.79% m/m), WEMA (-10.08% m/m), and ACCESSCORP (-12.70% m/m) which overshadowed positive performances recorded in GTCO (+12.42% m/m) FIDELITY (+79.25%), FBHN (+58.15%) and UBA (+0.27%).

Looking ahead, while short-term volatility is likely, the market outlook remains cautiously optimistic as market direction is expected to be largely influenced by corporate releases. Given the expectations for continued strong earnings reports from the banking sector, we anticipate price appreciation in select counters, however we note the overall tepid sentiment in the market could temper strong showings in the sector. Overall, the 6.96% YTD gain recorded in the banking sector marks it as the best performing sector YTD.
